RSC trip 13th February

The Boy in the Dress production is described as: "a bouncy, boisterous and above all humane celebration of those who dare to be different" and it definitely did not disappoint the staff and students of Queen's Croft! We arrived in good time which meant we were able to explore the sights of Stratford and most of the students took a short walk to the house where William Shakespeare was born. We had our lunch in the theatre and then took our seats just after 12pm. Upon entering, we were all given boppers which some students absolutely loved but others were not so keen on! We all took our seats which were all fabulously situated so no student had a bad view and waited for the show to begin. 3 of the cast members came out to introduce themselves and explain that it would be a relaxed performance which suited us perfectly. The cast, stage, props, music and general experience of the RSC was just incredible from start to finish. We were made to feel welcome and nothing was too much trouble. The students were impeccably behaved throughout the day and have been really positive about their individual experiences of the day. It was truly heart-warming to see all of the students laughing and engaging with the actors on stage. Taking the majority of the school on a trip is no mean feat and it wouldn't be possible without the dedication of the staff who supported on the day. I just wanted to say a huge thank you to all of the parents, students and staff for their support in helping to make yesterday such a fabulously successful experience for the students of Queen's Croft.

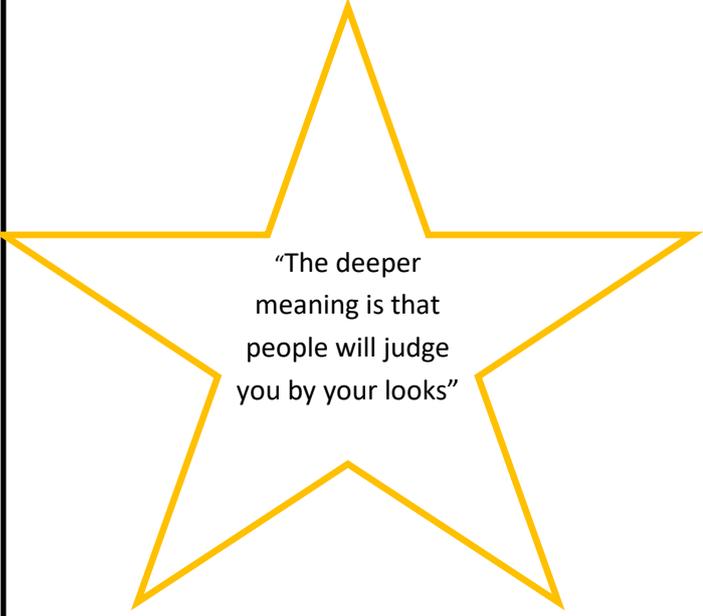

"I wouldn't have missed it for the world"

"I especially enjoyed learning about William Shakespeare"

"Sir, can I wear a dress tomorrow?"

"The deeper meaning is that people will judge you by your looks"

"Thought-provoking" seeing situations from others' perspectives.
